

NewsFlash!

Announcement: The American Heart Association (AHA) is now charging an application fee of $100 per submission for all non-AHA Professional members. Please note that pre and postdoctoral fellows will not be able to use their sponsor's membership number. AHA wants to more actively engage these training-level investigators to become involved with AHA professional councils and to explore the opportunities available through the association. A new Membership/Application Fee page has been added to the AHA application form in Grants@Heart. You can register online or through your application in Grants@Heart. Professional memberships start at $75 and include free research application submissions for one year.
