

NewsFlash!

Below is an update from Dr. Randolph Hall, Vice President, Research

Faculty,

As we head into summer, I am writing with a few reminders on effort reporting and certification on sponsored research projects.

- The effort claimed for each month must equal the actual effort devoted to each individual project during that month. For example, if 50% effort is claimed in July for project A and 50% effort is claimed in July for project B, these percentages should match how you devote your USC effort in the month of July.
- Faculty on 9-month appointments do not accrue vacation, nor can they charge sponsored funds for vacation during summer months.
- If a portion of your salary is paid from an NIH grant or contract, and your rate of pay in a month exceeds the NIH salary cap (currently $15,583/month), then the excess in pay beyond the cap must be charged to an unrestricted account, for which no additional effort is expected.

For example, if you charge 100% effort to an NIH grant in June, and your salary is $20,000/month in June, then $15,583 is charged to the NIH and the remaining $4,417 must be charged to an unrestricted account. In this scenario, no vacation is allowed in June because 100% effort is claimed on the NIH grant, even though a portion of salary is paid from an unrestricted source, and 100% of actual effort must be devoted to the NIH grant. Unrestricted accounts may include gift accounts or departmental accounts.

Additional details on effort reporting can be found at:

<https://fbs.usc.edu/depts/ofa/page/4118/policies/>

The current NIH salary cap can be found at:

<https://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-17-049.html>

Randolph Hall